An amendment to the Penal Code, provides a felony penalty for individuals convicted of animal abuse on a third offense.

As of September 1, 2001, people who are convicted of committing acts of cruelty or torture to animals can receive harsher punishment via the new bill: HB 653. Heinous crimes of cruelty towards animals can now be tried as a FELONY punishable by up to $10,000 in fines or 2 years in jail or BOTH. Under this new law, minors (under the age of 18) can be forced to undergo psychological counseling.

Studies have shown links between animal abuse and domestic violence.
Furthermore, those who torture animals are at much higher risk for committing violent and deadly crimes against humans later in life.
