EggstravaganZoo Returns to the El Paso Zoo & Botanical Gardens

Candy Stations, Family Fun, and Live Entertainment

EL PASO, Texas—Spring is in the air, and the El Paso Zoo and Botanical Gardens is ready to celebrate with one of its most anticipated events of the season, EggstravaganZoo!

Following a busy spring break, the Zoo invites families to keep the fun going with this Easter-themed celebration happening from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., April 4 and 5. Guests can enjoy a weekend filled with festive activities, hands-on learning, and unforgettable animal encounters.

EggstravaganZoo offers a fun and welcoming setting where families can celebrate spring while connecting with wildlife. Visitors will have the chance to meet two adorable domestic rabbits, Lola and Bunnacula, and learn from the Zoo education specialists about their care and behavior.

“EggstravaganZoo is always a hopping good time,” said El Paso Zoo and Botanical Gardens Interim Director Gary Lunsford. “We invite the community to enjoy a fun, family-focused experience with themed activities and unique animal enrichment throughout the day.”

Guests are encouraged to bring Easter baskets and visit eight candy stations located throughout the Zoo. The celebration will also feature live entertainment, music, coloring contests, and photo opportunities with the Easter Bunny and the Zoo’s mascot, Pebbles.

The fun is not just for guests. Zoo animals will also take part in the celebration through special holiday-themed enrichment activities. During these demonstrations, visitors can watch animals interact with treats and toys designed to encourage their natural behaviors.

Due to expected high attendance, parking at the Zoo will be limited. Complimentary overflow parking will be available at the El Paso County Coliseum, located across the street.
