A promise kept but at the ultimate price. An achievement not previously reached. With these two sentences we could sum up the year 2010 in a most succinct manner. A year fraught with challenges and changes for this department and community, together we strived to maintain the highest degree of service possible for a police force made up of the very best professional men and women police officers backed up by a dedicated group of civilian employees. Along with the committed employees of this organization, I am pleased to present the 2010 El Paso Police Department (EPPD) Annual Report.

“He has honor if he holds himself to an ideal of conduct though it is inconvenient, unprofitable, or dangerous to do so.” Walter Lippmann (1889 – 1974)

Officer Karl McDonough, though it was inconvenient, unprofitable and dangerous to the point of giving his life in service to the citizens of El Paso, upheld honor and the promise he made to protect the community even at the cost of his own life. As he was honorable in his service, we honor his memory by upholding that ideal of conduct with which Officer McDonough obviously was inspired.

Our high point in 2010 was the achievement of being named the 2010 Safest Large City in the nation by CQ Press. El Paso had been ranked 2nd or 3rd safest city during the past 13 years and, for the first time, has been named the safest city. I attribute this accomplishment not only to the hard work and dedication of every sworn officer but also with the assistance of the community policing efforts and the many partnerships that the El Paso Police Department has developed with citizens, other law enforcement agencies and City departments, and various civic groups throughout El Paso.

In the fall of 2010, we commenced with our first Academy recruit class in over two years with 35 cadets. During a grueling paramilitary six month academy, the recruits were instructed in patrol procedures, Texas Penal Code, Traffic Code, and firearms training to name a few. Their instruction was physically and mentally challenging, with only 21 successful cadets earning their badges. These new officers have learned my philosophy - a badge is earned and not given.

The challenges associated with increasing population, expanding city limits, and demanding economic pressures must be balanced with the protection of citizens, visitors and businesses by the most capable and professional police force possible. This will be accomplished with the cooperation and understanding of those who partner with EPPD: the residents of El Paso, city leaders and the business community. I am honored to lead this department as we move ahead and meet the challenges before us.

Gregory K. Allen
Chief of Police
El Paso, Texas
In the early hours of October 13, 2010, Officer Karl R. McDonough and his partner Officer Ricardo Lopez were on patrol responding to a call of a suspected drunk driver. A 19 year old man who was allegedly drinking and driving, ran a red light, and crashed into the police cruiser, killing Officer McDonough at the scene. Officer McDonough’s partner, Officer Ricardo Lopez, who was driving the patrol unit was seriously injured.

In the days that followed, a sadness enveloped, not only the officers, but the city they serve. The U.S. Honor Flag was sent to El Paso as a tribute to the life and service of a Fallen Officer.

Police and military honors were bestowed on Officer Karl R. McDonough as he was laid to rest in Fort Bliss National Cemetery. Officer McDonough was a four-year veteran of the El Paso Police Department and served in the United States Army from 1987 to 1995 as a Specialist. Officer McDonough is survived by his wife, four children, his brother, and his parents.
Through the efforts of the citizens of our community working in conjunction with the men and women of the El Paso Police Department, El Paso achieved the rank of the Safest City in the Nation for cities with a population over 500,000 as reported by the CQ Press in the annual publication, City Crime Rankings.

The ranking process analyzes crime data in relation to population resulting in statistics, rates and trends for total crime.

Across El Paso the largest decreases in crime categories were Murders, which were down 58% (5 in 2010 as compared to 12 in 2009), Vehicle Thefts were down 18% (1,552 in 2010 as compared to 1,890 in 2009), Thefts were down 5% (13,899 in 2010 as compared to 14,647 in 2009), and Burglaries were down 2% (1,953 in 2010 as compared to 1,991 in 2009) per Uniformed Crime Report 2010.

One Flag, One Nation, All Heroes.

Shortly after the September 11, 2001 attacks, a flag was gifted to President and Co-Founder Chris Heisler of the Honor Network by the Texas House of Representatives. The Honor Network organizes public appearances nationwide for the U.S. Honor Flag and was founded on the conviction that every person who is committed in service to our communities and country deserves the support of every single American, and that an increase in American patriotism is vital to keep our great nation united. Like many Americans, Heisler felt compelled to take action during a horrific time for the United States, and with this flag in tow, he set out for Ground Zero. Along the way, Heisler helped to organize one of the longest police motorcades in the history of the United States. Since September 2001, the United States Honor Flag has paid tribute to those who have lost their lives in the line of duty protecting our lives, our homes, our country, and also those who currently serve our communities and our nation.

The U.S. Honor Flag was sent to honor the service of Officer Karl R. McDonough #2703 who was killed in the line of duty on October 13, 2010. American Airlines flight 1095 arrived in El Paso on October 15, 2010 to deliver the U.S. Honor Flag to the EPPD Honor Guard. The Flag was presented by the pilot to the Honor Guard in a brief ceremony on the tarmac. Once presented to the Honor Guard, the Flag was immediately transported under police escort to Officer McDonough’s side where it was placed on display as a tribute to a fallen hero. The Honor Guard and the U.S. Honor Flag never left Officer McDonough’s side until his burial when the Flag was secured in its case and then flown back to its home in Austin, Texas.
Central Regional Command

Citizens and officers were instrumental in the Central Regional Command (CRCC) decrease in crime. Compared to 2009, together they reduced Part 1 offenses by 4%. CRCC focused on the younger generation and is part of the Sandra Day O’Connor Criminal Justice Academy, a program that allows high school students to participate in an intern program with the command. The students learn about investigations, patrol procedures, and traffic duties; and participate in community assignments. The program has had a positive impact on the students’ attitudes and grades.

The CRCC Bike Unit has been involved in an initiative to train select officers from all other regions as bike officers. These officers will be able to utilize bicycles as a patrol tool in highly congested areas as well as providing a stealth approach toward criminal activity. This will create a one-on-one approach to patrolling as well as a better relationship with the community.

Pebble Hills Regional Command

Pebble Hills Regional Command (PHRC) continued crime reduction efforts with a concentration on burglaries of vehicle and graffiti. The 26% reduction in these crimes was attributed to increased prevention and enforcement efforts utilizing a team of six officers and one detective. The team had tremendous success, making numerous arrests and recovering thousands of dollars in property. Public awareness of these problems was increased by presentations, media coverage, E-Force bulletins, and Help End Auto Theft (H.E.A.T.) drives. Officers worked with the community to remove graffiti and apprehend offenders. Personnel also focused on making parks safer. Marty Robbins Park and Album Park, two of the highest crime parks, had reductions of 7% and 10% respectively.

The expanding population on the eastside of the city has caused an increase in traffic problems. PHRC has increased traffic enforcement with an emphasis on high collision areas and apprehending DWI offenders. Also, PHRC personnel continuously work to educate the public about traffic, pedestrian, and bicycle safety in an effort to reduce traffic crashes and fatalities. This has been accomplished through Safety Town, Amber Card sessions, and National Night Out (NNO). Safety Town is a program that teaches children how to be safe when crossing streets and riding bicycles. Amber Card is a computer program that generates identification cards for the child’s parents. NNO is a campaign that involves citizens, law enforcement agencies, civic groups, neighborhood organizations, and local officials from over 15,000 communities from all 50 states, U.S. Territories, Canadian cities and military bases. NNO is designed to heighten crime and drug prevention awareness; generate support for, and participate in, local anti-crime programs; strengthen neighborhood spirit and police community partnerships; and send a message to criminals that neighborhoods are organized and are fighting back.
Mission Valley Regional Command

The Mission Valley Regional Command (MVRC) had a successful year with the second lowest Part 1 offenses of the five command regions. One of the successful initiatives that was utilized throughout the year addressed crime trends that happen during Spring Break and the summer months when students are out of school. Enforcement actions that were taken included curfew violations, DWI and traffic enforcement. Officers worked in partnership with the community to reduce trends of aggravated robberies, burglaries of habitation and vehicles, thefts of beer, and aggravated assaults, to name a few.

MVRC Criminal Investigations Division and Tactical Unit (CID/TAC), with the support of Target Stores, Lowe’s Home Improvement, Home Depot and the El Paso Police Foundation, were able to obtain cameras to assist in crime prevention allowing them to take a proactive approach in combating crime. CID personnel met with the commands various shifts sharing information utilizing the Focus File, a file that is used to target repeat offenders in the valley.

Northeast Regional Command

In 2010, the Northeast Regional Command’s (NERC) main focus was crime reduction and traffic enforcement. Through bold management directives and aggressive enforcement by all personnel, the crime rate dropped by the end of the year when compared with 2009. This was accomplished by implementing a number of pro-active operations with the use of bike officers in high crime areas. Crime Surge Operations that targeted specific crimes such as beer thefts and burglaries were also conducted. Community Programs implemented by NERC Police Area Representatives such as the Lower Dyer Revitalization Program and crime awareness initiatives also helped tremendously in the reduction of crime. Traffic enforcement was increased with an emphasis on the crime of Driving While Intoxicated (DWI). This resulted in 26% increase in DWI arrests.

Westside Regional Command

The Westside Regional Command (WSRC) has the distinction of having the largest geographical area of all commands with 75 square miles to cover. The officers have become creative in bringing resolution to many crime trends through the cooperative efforts and joint operations with several other area law enforcement agencies. One such initiative is Operation Rosa’s Cantina which was created to share information on known and repeat offenders. This operation identified, located, and arrested wanted offenders causing a significant decline in burglaries and thefts of beer. Officers continued their collaborative work with the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission setting up sting operations targeting violations involving bar workers and underage patrons.

Utilizing information from the regional crime analyst, some patrol resources were reallocated. These officers were sent into high crime areas to walk the beat while others were trained as bike officers. Both methods allow the officers to meet with the community on a personal level.
The Directed Investigations Division has developed a Fusion Center, the Multi-Agency Tactical Response Information eXchange (MATRIX), located at Police Headquarters. The MATRIX is an effective and efficient mechanism to exchange information and intelligence, maximize resources, streamline operations and improve the ability to fight crime and terrorism by merging data from a variety of sources. MATRIX is designed to be a centralized information and intelligence hub for the El Paso Police Department and other area law enforcement agencies. The strategy is to quickly disseminate useful and relevant information to field officers.

MATRIX has access to various databases to include the sexual offender database, Texas Pardons and Parole database, police record management systems, TDEX (a database utilized by 1,202 agencies to Texas send information to Texas Department of Public Safety), LInX (a database for New Mexico and Texas agencies to send information), TX Driver’s License imaging, and the ability to search Mexican stolen vehicles, to name a few. Personnel have the ability to check wanted subjects, stolen vehicles and insurance information. The center is currently staffed with officers, research assistants, and the JOIC (Texas Military Forces from the Joint Operation Information Center). The Fusion Center’s personnel are tasked to review and watch for crime trends developing throughout the City and County of El Paso as well as to keep a close eye out for any possible terrorism threats to the region.
Ciad mille failh which means one hundred thousand welcomes and is a traditional greeting from the Scottish descendants in the province of Nova Scotia (New Scotland), Canada, the site of the Crime Stoppers International Training Conference in Halifax, Aug. 23-25, 2010.

The Opening Ceremony was spectacular, with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in their bright red jackets marching in with the flags of every Canadian province to bagpipe accompaniment.

From the opening session participants learned to “make a difference that makes a difference.” This became a sub-theme of the conference, whose stated mission was to “Chart a New Course in Public Safety.”

Highlights included “How to Identify and Capture Fugitives in International Communities” with three heavyweight presenters: Chris Dudley, Deputy Director of the U.S. Marshals Service; Hector Gonzalez from F.B.I. headquarters in Washington (and a former Special Agent in El Paso); and Martin Cox, Director of Interpol. An MOU between Crime Stoppers International and Interpol spreads the benefits of Crime Stoppers to 188 countries around the world.

The final afternoon of the conference was supposed to star Mayor of Cuidad Juarez, Chihuahua, Mexico, Jose Reyes Ferriz but he was called to Mexico City by President Felipe Calderon. However, he had been videotaped earlier, giving a very truthful account of the ongoing violence and how it has affected all aspects of his City’s life. It was announced that Crime Stoppers International has chosen Cuidad Juarez, Chihuahua, Mexico, El Paso’s sister city, as its target city for creating a Crime Stoppers “template” that can operate in a war zone. Other cities around the world now await the creation of this Crime Stoppers “template” program so they can benefit from it. They include Baghdad, Bogota, Buenos Aires and others.

The final session had a blockbuster announcement. Crime Stoppers International has partnered with a high-end movie and television production house in Toronto to create a new television program called “Crime Stoppers.”

The President’s Gala ended the conference, and the final awards were announced. Crime Stoppers of El Paso received the Best Crime of the Week – Television award for cities with a population over 400,000 and under 750,000.
America’s 911 Foundation, Inc. is a non-profit organization whose goals are to support those who answer the 911 call and to never forget those who volunteered, served, protected and lost their lives on September 11, 2001. The Foundation actively supports those who put their lives on the line for their communities every day. The Foundation provides scholarships to children of first responders as well as assists emergency organizations with funds, materials, equipment and/or volunteers when needed through the National Volunteer Emergency Team database that serves the entire nation. The Foundation has donated over $350,000 to first responder’s Departments and their families. Each year the Foundation has presented a new police Harley-Davidson motorcycle to escorting departments and as of 2010 has donated a total of ten motorcycles.

Officer Michael Brucks and Officer Eduardo Holguin, two 20 year veteran motorcycle officers, rode in this year’s escort. They visited each of the three sites: Somerset, Pennsylvania—Flight 93 crash site, Washington DC—the Pentagon, and New York City—Ground Zero, the site of the Twin Towers. The officers also went to the National Police Officer’s Memorial and the White House.

Officer Brucks related the following about the 911 Escort. “When standing in the field of flight 93 a very surreal feeling came over me. An eerie feeling of great loss. All was quiet, even 9 years after this tragedy. Sometimes I feel that we as Americans have a very short memory and the events of this tragic day seem a million miles away. After visiting the crash sites, speaking with people who were there and are dealing with this in their face daily, I have a deeper sympathy and understanding of the events. This was also true of Ground Zero. While we were speaking with a transit officer that was explaining where the towers were, someone asked him if he was working that day. He turned and said, ‘We were all working that day.’ This simple statement was very sobering and his words were not just a rehearsed statement he gave to all visitors. The visit gave me great pride in the wearing the uniform of a first responder and a deeper appreciation of all who wear the uniform and the true importance of how precious life is, how each day that ‘we’ put on the uniform could be our last.”
